Bowdoin College Children's Chorus

Finally, a chance for kids who love to sing! Help your children set their voices free and experience the fun and power of making music as a group! No audition required.

Students in the Bowdoin Children's Chorus learn music ranging from songs from other cultures to songs about compassion and the environment. Combine song with sign language, percussion and dance as a means of exploring how music is related to movement.

Led by local children's musician, Matt Loosigian. With 20 years of choral and a cappella singing under his belt, Matt makes singing fun for kids. A free practice CD is included.

This Chorus will give participants the opportunity to work closely with Bowdoin college music students. The final performances will take place in local retirement communities to help the children learn about the importance of service.

For children in grades 1-5. Minimum enrollment 12. Maximum enrollment 20.
